I. CURRENT POSITION

Orlando J. and Marian H. Hollis Professor of Law, University of Oregon (2011-present)

- Assistant professor, 2003-07; associate professor, 2007-12; professor, 2012-present
- Areas of emphasis: criminal law, environmental law, ethics, evidence, poverty law

II. EDUCATION

J.D., Harvard Law School (1991)

- Student director, Harvard Legal Aid Bureau
- Recipient, McKenna/Ford Foundation grant for human rights work

B.A., Yale University (1988)

- Member, Phi Beta Kappa
- Recipient, White Prize for scholarship in U.S. history

III. PUBLICATIONS

A. WIGMORE TREATISE

THE NEW WIGMORE TREATISE ON EVIDENCE: IMPEACHMENT AND REHABILITATION (with Roger Park), published by Wolters Kluwer in 2012, with updates each subsequent year

- “[T]he principal modern treatise on evidence . . .”

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Elena Kagan

- “Wigmore’s treatise was the dominant work of evidence scholarship in the 20th century. The new volume by Park and Lininger concerns the impeachment and rehabilitation of witnesses, one of the central, and most perplexing, areas of evidentiary law. The volume will certainly be widely used, as other volumes have been, by judges, practitioners, and academics . . . Lininger is one of the outstanding scholars of evidence of the younger generation.”

Richard Friedman, University of Michigan Law School

- “The New Wigmore is a justly prestigious series, and I am sure that the volume by Park and Lininger will be influential and highly valuable -- particularly given the exceptional expertise and strong professional reputation that each author brings to this project. This will be a significant contribution to evidence law scholarship, and the bench, bar, and academy owe the authors a debt of gratitude.”

David Sklansky, Stanford Law School

B. MEASURES OF PRODUCTIVITY AND IMPACT

Placements in top journals. I have placed my scholarship eight times in top-20 journals, 13 times in top-30 journals, and 16 times in top-50 journals.

Yelnosky study of scholarly productivity. I am the only professor at the University of Oregon whose score in the Roger Williams study of scholarly productivity exceeded the average at Harvard and Yale. This study assigned points for placements in frequently cited journals.

Citations in court cases. The U.S. Supreme Court cited one of my articles, and references to my scholarship have appeared in 24 briefs filed with the U.S. Supreme Court, including a brief submitted on behalf of 37 states' attorneys general. A total of 20 states' supreme courts have cited my work, as have federal appellate courts in eight circuits.

Overall citations. According to the Hein Scholar Rank, which takes account of both academic and judicial citations, I rank among the top 13% of the 10,000 law professors nationwide.

Presentations. I have presented, or have recently been scheduled to present, my scholarship at Yale, Stanford, Columbia, NYU, Duke, Berkeley, Georgetown, UCLA, Texas, Vanderbilt, Washington University, Minnesota, Florida, Fordham, North Carolina, Boston College, Alabama, William and Mary, Davis, Washington, Utah, and SMU, among other schools. I have presented at several conferences sponsored by the Association of American Law Schools and the American Bar Association. I have also presented at NSF-funded conferences and at the International Legal Ethics Conference.
